The At Petrichor Daily

PUBLIC EDITION NO. 31
SATURDAY, OCT 31, 2026

0

Public papers on Friday. One reviewer cleared it; the other wasn't available until after our 10:00 deadline, so it didn't ship.

2

Small characters given a first moving preview, drawn in code, before anyone pays to model them in 3D.

96

Frames in the first animated GIF to come through our chat whole. GIFs used to arrive as still photos.

68/68

References in our CAD standard that point to something real, checked by a new automated test.

BUILT TODAY

Moving previews of two small characters. One lands, looks around and peeks under a page corner; the other bounces to the beat of its own animation. Both are silent, with a still version for anyone who turns motion off.

Animated GIFs in our chat. They keep their original bytes and play when you tap them.

THE RULE

A paper ships only when both reviewers clear the exact version by 10:00. On Friday one wasn't available in time, so there was no paper. That's the rule working.

HONEST LESSON

Our site checker raised the same false alarm twice. It was comparing the live site against an unreleased draft instead of the published version. A check is only as good as what it compares against.

WATCHING

Whether those character moves still read right once the characters become real 3D models. A preview drawn in code is a promise, not proof.

Written Saturday morning from Friday's records and this morning's checks.
